

Creating Goals for College Testing by Intended Course or School

Samuel Yeager, Jan 2021

What Score do I need?

- Students want to know what goals they should set for the SAT, so that they can get into the field and school that they desire.

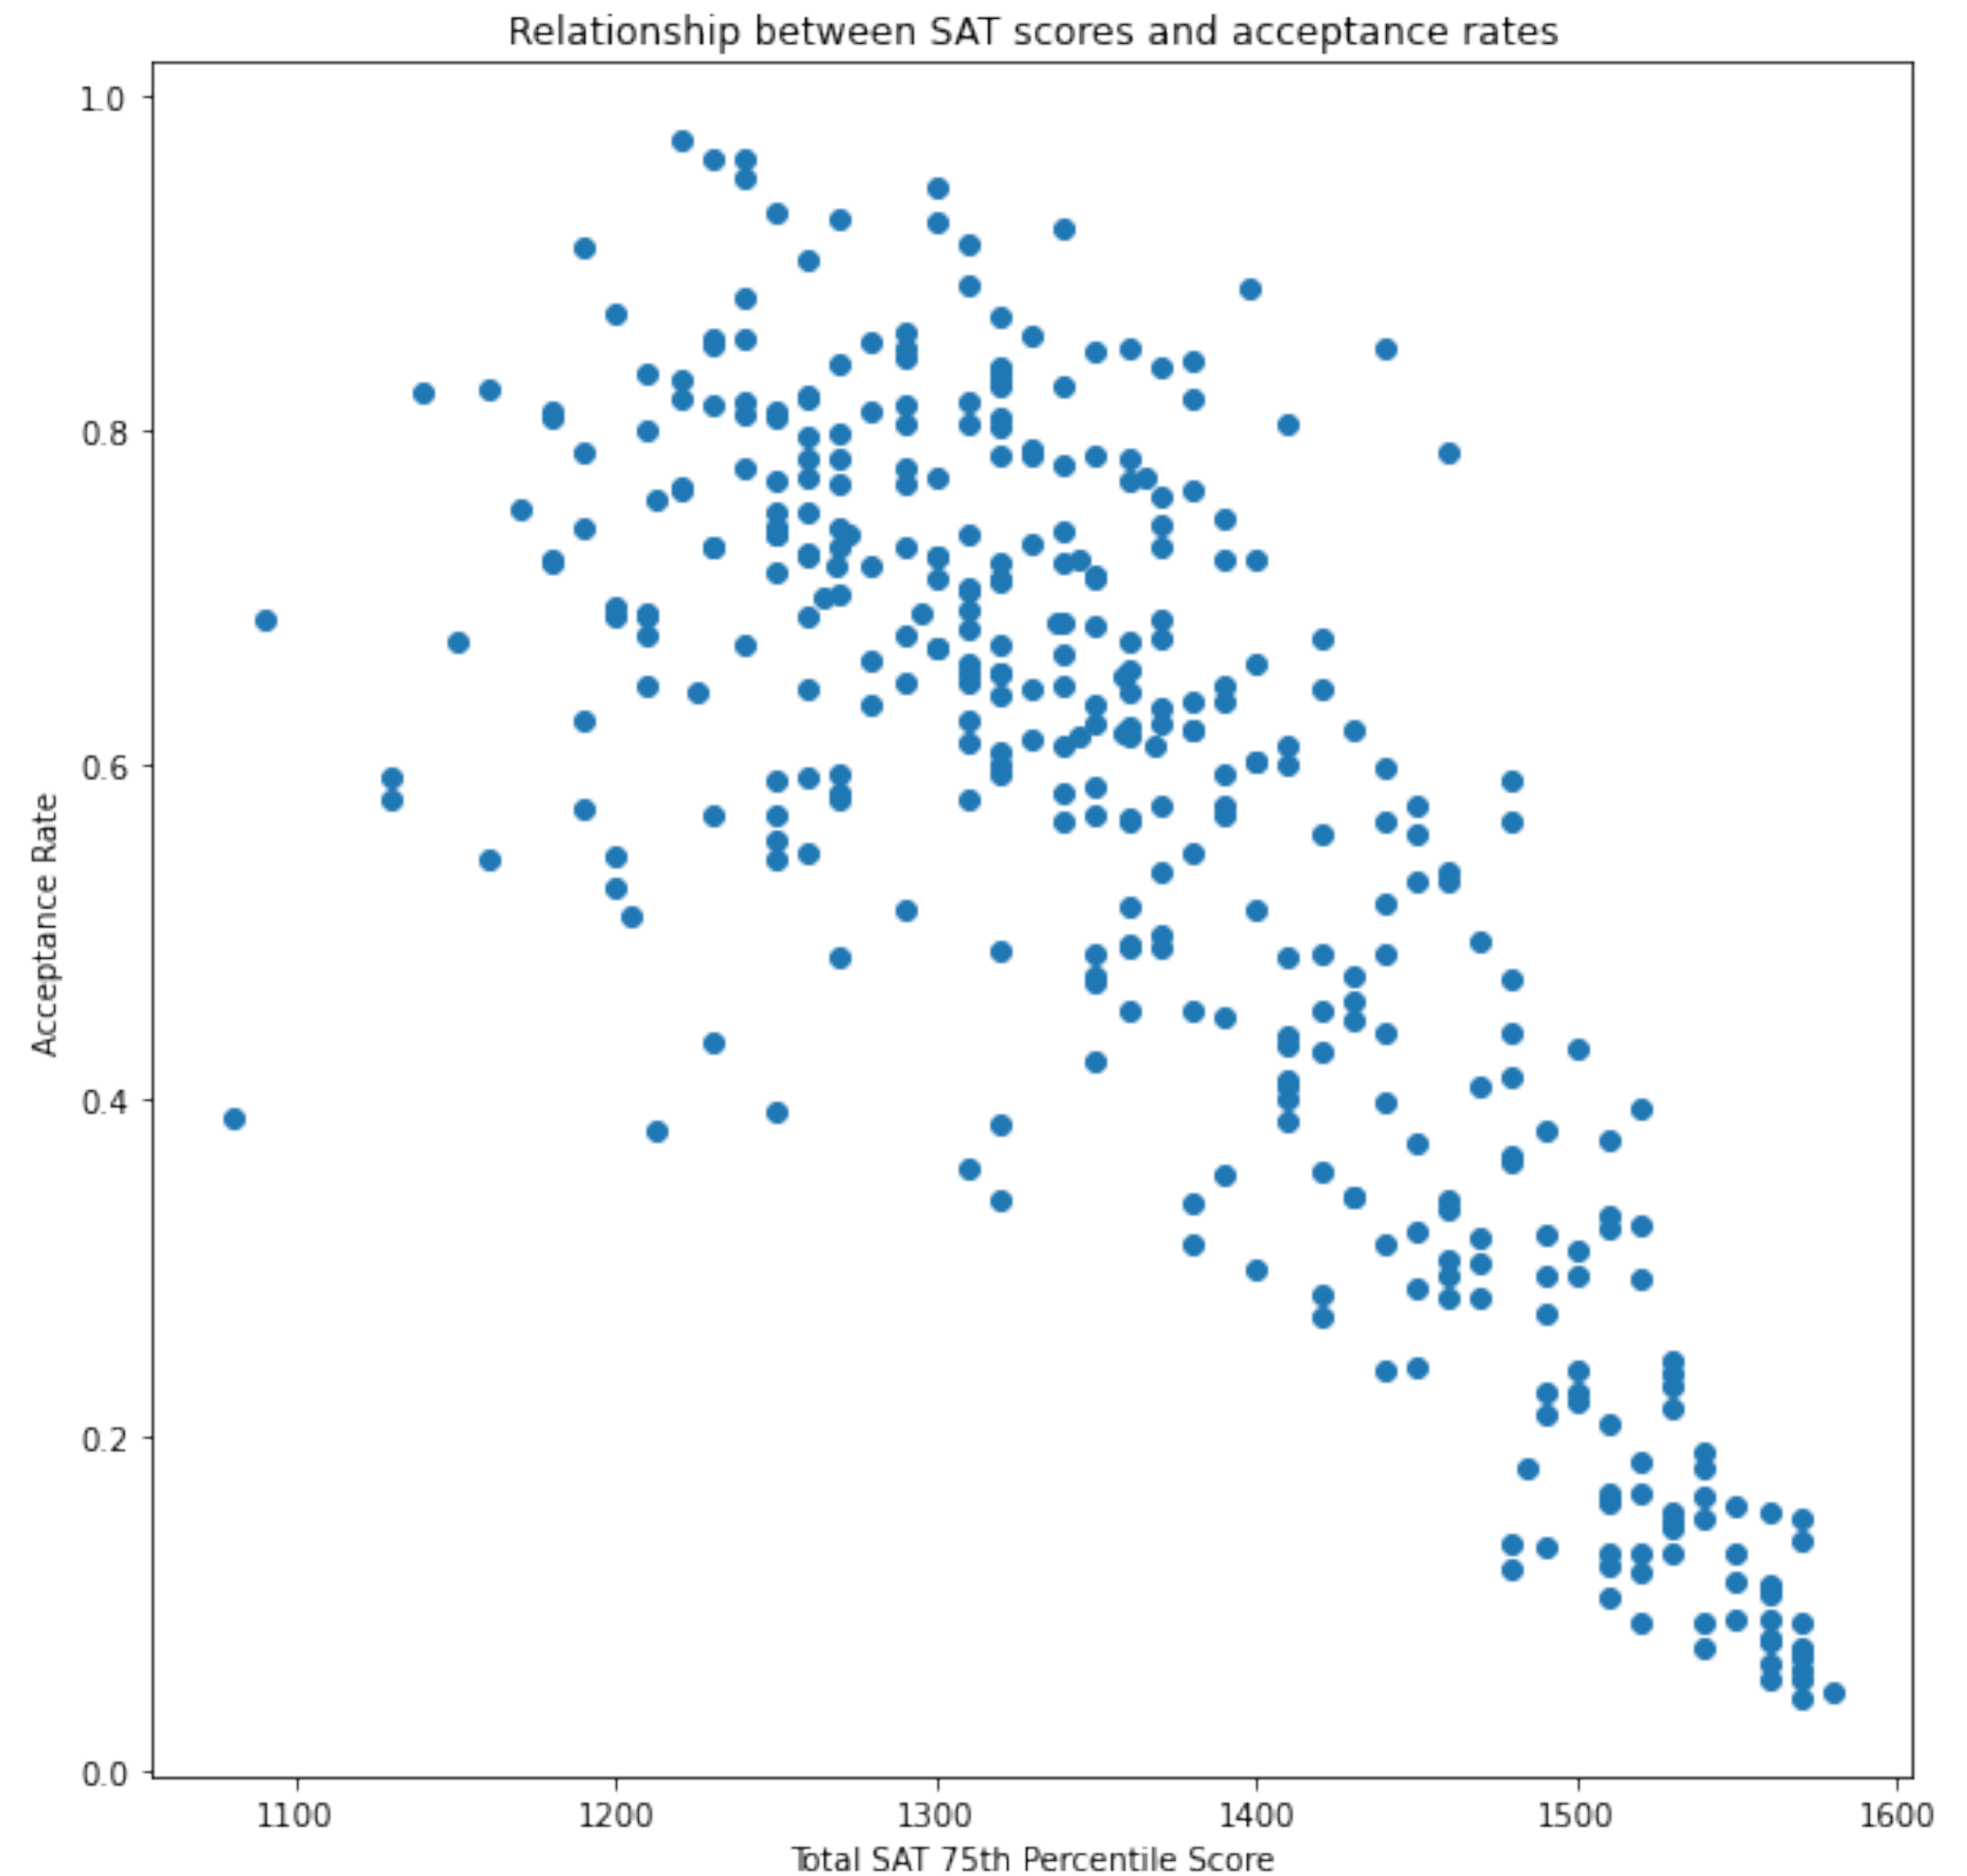

What total score do I need for my intended major?

- Some fields are more academically demanding than others.

What score do I need for the school that I want?

- Schools with lower acceptance rates tend to demand higher scores.

In Conclusion

- A higher score is always preferable, regardless of intent.
- Nonetheless, some fields require less pressure on the test, so the student can spend some of that energy on other parts of their application or experience.
